

Compassion U Consent, Release and Waiver

This Consent, Release and Waiver was last updated as of June 23, 2025.

To participate in Center Offerings, you must understand that the services and tools offered or accessible through the Site are not intended to replace or be a substitute for medical or psychiatric care in accordance with the Center's Consent to Participate, Release and Waiver of Liability (the "Consent, Release and Waiver"), and by agreeing to these Terms of Service, you are agreeing to the Consent, Release and Waiver terms

I consent to participate in a CBCT event and accept full responsibility for my health and voluntarily complete this Consent to Participate, Release, and Waiver of Liability. I agree to enter this consent, release, and waiver of liability. I understand and agree that the services and tools offered by the Center for Contemplative Science & Compassion-Based Ethics are not intended to replace or be a substitute for medical or psychiatric care. CBCT is not a therapeutic intervention for any disorders identified in the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders or any other medical reference, and is not intended to be used as such. I acknowledge that the CBCT event may at times make participants feel uncomfortable or vulnerable. By completing this consent, release, and waiver of liability, I assume all risks for any physical or mental consequences of participating in the CBCT event. By signing this consent, release, and waiver of liability, and in consideration for Emory University allowing me to participate in the CBCT event, I also specifically and expressly agree to hold harmless, indemnify, and release Emory University, and all training staff, and their respective employees, collaborators, agents, associates, and affiliates from any and all liability arising from my participation in the CBCT event or arising from the results of the educational guidance and other content that will be or has been provided in the CBCT event. I also acknowledge and agree that any personal information shared in the CBCT event by other participants is to be maintained as confidential. I will not disclose any personal information shared in the CBCT event outside the CBCT event or in any form of media. I further acknowledge and agree that participating in this CBCT event does not entitle participants to: i) teach or further distribute any content presented; or ii) represent themselves as sponsored by or otherwise affiliated or connected with the Center for Contemplative Science & Compassion-Based Ethics or Emory University. I understand that Emory University may terminate my participation in the CBCT event: (i) at any time in its sole discretion; or (ii) if I violate the terms of this agreement or Emory University Policies or Procedures. I consent to and voluntarily choose to participate in the CBCT event described herein. I certify that I am at least 18 years of age, I am legally competent, and I fully acknowledge that it is a legally binding agreement under Georgia law.